A safe place to test, train and innovate.

Today's fastest growing wealth management firms manage their technology strategically and use it as a foundation for growth. They're focused on implementing new digital capabilities, deepening existing client relationships, increasing the penetration of digital tools, driving operational efficiency and delivering actionable insights. To do this, they're building best-in-class technology solutions and IT operating models that are efficient, scalable and flexible.

However, many firms still struggle to efficiently upgrade and implement new solutions due to strict regulatory requirements, the high cost of risk, and lack of flexible technology. As a result, innovation stalls and over time, the business fails to keep up with both client and advisor expectations.

A solution to this is to introduce a secure, identical environment for teams to test product upgrades and customizations before they are rolled out to the whole firm. Practifi Sandbox fuels innovation by providing teams a safe place to test new features and train teams. As a result, firms can build creative solutions, reduce risk and improve overall product adoption.

Fuel your technology evolution.

Although there's no one-size-fits-all technology solution to scale wealth management firms, there are options that can help get you there. Practifi Sandbox makes it possible to upgrade your platform safely, test new customizations before implementation and help teams facilitate training in an isolated environment separate from your core platform.

To be a leading firm in the industry, you need technology that moves as quickly as you do. Practifi Sandbox provides an identical environment to fuel innovation, all while offering the security, transparency and flexibility your firm needs to implement creative solutions safely.

"The Practifi Sandbox environments form a critical part of our delivery cycle because we have the ability to test and refine enhancements prior to releasing updates into our production environment, ultimately resulting in seamless roll-outs and increased product adoption."
